We're passionate about our hometown. After all, Thomas Rowe Price, Jr., founded his investment management firm in Baltimore in 1937. And here our headquarters have remained, even as we've grown to be a global enterprise of over 5,000 associates. We proudly serve the communities wherever we work and live through civic contributions and the volunteer efforts of our associates.

As we celebrate our 75th anniversary, we value our long-term relationship with our clients, our associates, and the Baltimore community.

Dear Sponsors, Patrons, Professionals and Guests:

The 2012 Maryland Club Open Tournament Committee is pleased to welcome all the Sponsors, Patrons, SDA professionals, Members and Guests to the 9th annual Maryland Club Open. The Club's members have undertaken ALL aspects of hosting such a high level tournament – including fundraising, scheduling, social events and marketing. This year's tournament returns to our original format with the inclusion of a professional doubles event, now under the new SDA (Squash Doubles Association) banner, and a 24 team doubles Pro-Am.

Obviously, a tournament of this magnitude could not have been possible without the involvement and financial support of the Maryland Club's members. Specifically, we offer our sincere thanks to Brown Advisory, Maryland Club, Platt Development Group, Royals Commercial Services, Stifel Nicolaus, and T. Rowe Price, the Tournament's Gold sponsors. Additionally, there are several other individuals and businesses linked to our membership that have been financially supportive and are listed in the Tournament program.

We would not have considered hosting this tournament again if the Tournament Committee, Board of Governors and Club Management did not believe the Maryland Club had the facilities and extraordinary staff necessary to flawlessly run such an event. This weekend, we are certain that you will experience the dedication of all of the Maryland Club staff as no details will be overlooked. We would like to thank Katherine Mandaro, the Club's General Manager, for her support of the squash program, as well as the Club's President, Jim Smith and the Board of Governors for their efforts in ensuring that the Maryland Club's services and facilities are always exceptional.

Lastly, the Committee would like to thank Andrew Cordova, Stewart Shettle, and the Maryland Club Squash Committee for their attention to detail in preparing for this year's Tournament and their always being wonderful ambassadors for Maryland Club squash.

Welcome to the 2012 Maryland Club Open!

Sincerely,

Douglas M. Hoffberger

Tournament Chairman

Dear Sponsors, Patrons, Professionals, and other Guests:

Platt Development Group is proud to be a Gold Sponsor for the 2012 Maryland Club Open. We are fast approaching the 10th anniversary of this tournament and with the addition of our new squash lounge and glass back viewing court, is there any question that it just continues to get better and better?

This year also represents the first year that the MD Club Open will be hosting the event under the new Squash Doubles Association (SDA) banner. In fact it will be the first ever officially sanctioned SDA Tournament – something that we will all be able to look back in future years as being a very special honor.

Special thanks need to go out to Doug Hoffberger and Andrew Cordova for organizing this event year in and year out. It is certainly one of the premier squash events of the year.

Sincerely,

Sage Platt

Brown Advisory is proud to be a gold sponsor of the 2012 Maryland Club Open. This event puts Baltimore at the center of the best squash played in the country this year. Once again, the Club, its staff and Andrew Cordova, in particular, have done a fantastic job organizing an exciting weekend of squash. We especially want to wish all of the participants in the Thomas Schweizer Pro-Am the best of luck!

Sincerely,

Jim Schweizer

Dear Sponsors, Patrons, Professionals, and Guests:

Once again, the world's top squash players are coming to Baltimore to showcase their skills at the Maryland Club Open.

Stifel Nicolaus is proud to be a part of this outstanding event. As a firm that has been in existence since 1890, we strongly believe in supporting the communities we serve.

Our congratulations and heartfelt thanks go to the Maryland Club, its staff and members for creating a high-quality event where the competition will be fast and fierce. We would especially like to recognize Andrew Cordova and his efforts to continue to build the squash community throughout Maryland.

We look forward to an exciting weekend. So sit back and enjoy the long rallies and amazing gets.

Sincerely,

A Preview of the 2012 Maryland Club Open BY ROB DINERMAN

The much-ballyhooed debut was starting to veer far off course from the way they had planned it. Damien Mudge and Ben Gould, fierce rivals throughout the prior several years before deciding to join up during the summer just past, were rapidly and increasingly sliding into trouble in the first-ever match of their partnership, the opening-round quarterfinal of the 2010 Maryland Club Open, where they were being out-played by a slight but definite margin by Mark Chaloner and Chris Walker, who had taken a 1-0, 7-4 lead, their confidence growing with every passing point. Would the prohibitive top seeds, who between them had won every one of the 34 full-ranking pro doubles tournaments that had been played in the three years since the 2007 edition of this event, actually be bounced from the draw in the very first round? And if so, would they ever be able to recover from this rather noteworthy false start?

Two years, 61 wins (out of 62 matches) and 19 titles in 20 attempts later, Mudge and Gould enter this 2012-13 season — and this weekend — as the team to beat, having run off nine straight games to capture that 2010 Maryland Club Open title, which they successfully defended a year ago by overpowering both the Walker/Chaloner and Matt Jenson/Clive Leach pairings in a three-team round-robin invitational. It was by no means the first time that this tournament, now in its ninth holding — every year from 2003 onward, other than a one-year hiatus in 2009, since Baltimore hosted the U. S. National Doubles Championships that season — had provided the launch-pad for a major and enduring alteration of the dynamics of a professional doubles season or era.

When Mudge and Gary Waite captured the inaugural 2003 edition of this tourney (which began on a wild Halloween Friday night with qualifiers Alex Pavulans and Chris Deratnay straight-setting heavy favorites and reigning Kellner Cup champions Leach and Blair Horler), it jump-started a run of three straight Maryland Club Open titles and an equal number of years at No. 1. But when Gould and Paul Price ended that skein with a semifinal win over Mudge/Waite at this venue in October 2006, it signified the takeover that would follow, as Price/Gould would duplicate that result in the ensuing Big Apple Open, North American Open and Briggs Cup finals and finish that 2006-07 season as the No. 1 team.

There are additional similar phenomena associated with the degree to which performances in this tournament have set the tone for what comes afterwards, among them that Leach and Horler never fully recovered from their unexpected first-round 2003 ouster; that Preston Quick and John Russell began the first of their five praiseworthy seasons together (2006-11) by reaching the 2006

Maryland Club Open final, with 15 final-round advances (including in this event in both 2008 and 2010) to follow; and that Viktor Berg and Josh McDonald, first-round losers the year before, rocketed to the final of the 2004 Maryland Club Open en route to a season that saw them attain several other important finals, including that season's Briggs Cup tourney.

Indeed, so many autumn results that have presaged the entire subsequent tour schedule have taken place right here in Charm City, that it seems poetically fitting that this brand-new Squash Doubles Association (SDA) tour, and the whole new era in men's professional doubles on this continent that it represents, is being ushered in this weekend with the 2012 Maryland Club Open, the first full-ranking tournament of the 2012-13 SDA campaign. Certainly there are a number of entrants this weekend who with a variety of partners have played major roles in this tournament on multiple occasions — indeed, five of them, namely Mudge, Gould, Leach, Quick and Walker, have been part of this event literally from the moment of its 2003 inception.

But the more prevailing theme this year is how many new team alignments have emerged since the end of last season that are legitimately capable of challenging Mudge and Gould; this seems symbolized by the fact that The Champs, now as noted entering only their third full season as teammates, already have a longer-lasting partnership than that of any other team in the top tier of the tour.

Manek Mathur and Yvain Badan, who had to withdraw from the 2010 Maryland Club Open when the former's playing hand was badly cut on a pane of glass, took a half-season hiatus this past winter/spring immediately after handing Mudge/Gould their sole defeat (in the semis of the mid-December Briggs Cup) and are rejoining forces this fall. Leach and Price are making their partnership debut this weekend after splitting a pair of five-gamers against each other in this Eager Street venue in 2007 and 2008. Greg Park and Jonny Smith have been partners only once prior to this upcoming season, a final-round advance (the first in full-ranking play for each of them) in Cleveland last winter featuring an exciting late-comeback semifinal win over Mathur and Leach. Jenson and four-time Maryland Club Open finalist Quick have played together two times before, the most recent of which was nearly two years ago, reaching the finals both times.

World rackets champion James Stout, who plans to make an enhanced commitment to this year's tour after appearing only sparingly the past few years, and 2012 U. S. Mixed Doubles finalist

(with Suzie Pierrepont) Greg McArthur have teamed up only once prior to this season, at the April 2011 Players Championship, when McArthur's scheduled partner Dan Roberts injured a hamstring muscle. Stout proved so successful a pinch-hitter that weekend, during which he and McArthur reached the semis with sequential wins over Russell/Quick and Imran Khan/Steve Scharff, that the pair have decided to team up this season. There are plenty of other potentially contending team entries as well heading to downtown Baltimore, where, if history is any guide, what happens on these venerable (and recently renovated) courts may well prove to be a harbinger for the succeeding seven months of high-level athleticism and excitement.

Rob Dinerman has written the team profiles and major articles for every Maryland Club Open Program in the history of this tournament, and his "History Of The U. S. National Doubles In Baltimore" was the feature article in the National Doubles Program when that event was held in Baltimore in March 2010. The winner of two pro-am events, the Mitch Jennings Cup and Tim Chilton Cup during the 2009-10 season (with Chris Walker and Ed Chilton as his respective partners), Dinerman was ranked as high as No. 10 on the WPSA pro hardball tour, winning more than 50 Open hardball tournaments and reaching the finals of the U. S. Nationals in 2004 and 2005. He is currently the editor of the Dailysquashreport.com web site and is the major writer for both the men's SDA and women's WDSA professional doubles tours. He recently released a memoir "Chasing The Lion: An Unresolved Journey Through The Phillips Exeter Academy," excerpts from which, as well as a number of his squash archival articles, can be found on his web site, www.robdinerman.com.

2012 MARYLAND CLUB OPEN TEAM PROFILES BY ROB DINERMAN

Damien Mudge/Ben Gould: Partners for the past two dominant seasons, this pair of contemporaneous (born just six months apart in 1976) Manhattan-based Australian superstars have gone 19 for 20, compiling a 61-1mark in a collaborative effort which debuted in the 2010 Maryland Club Open. There, after falling behind Mark Chaloner and Chris Walker 1-0, 7-4, they then racked up nine straight games (at the expense of, sequentially, Walker/Chaloner, James Hewitt/Greg Park and John Russell/Preston Quick) to emphatically kick-start an undefeated (38-0) run through the 12-tournament 2010-11 campaign. It was the fourth time that Mudge had won this championship, preceded by his three-year skein with Gary Waite from 2003-05, the inaugural editions of the Maryland Club Open, and the third for Gould, who had teamed with Paul Price to prevail in 2006 and 2008.

Mudge's 114 pro-doubles titles are well more than double the total of any other active player, as are his 11 years (seven with Waite, two with Victor Berg and the last two with Gould) as a member of the No. 1 team. His exploits on Eager Street include partnering Waite to the 2002 BIDS title (when they also squared off in the concomitant hardball singles final, won by Waite) and teaming with Gould to win last year's three-team doubles invitational. Gould's career pro-doubles title count now stands at 45, including 22 over a four-year (from 2006-2010) span with Price, three with Quick during the 2005-06 season and the 2009 Cambridge Club Doubles event that he won with Michael Pirnak. He has reached five Maryland Club Open finals, winning (as noted) with Price in 2006 and 2008 and with Mudge in 2010, and losing with Quick to Mudge/Waite in 2005 and with Price to Walker and Clive Leach in 2007.

Manek Mathur/Yvain Badan: This pair of mid-2000's Trinity College teammates have a 13-tournament body of work consisting of a pair of truly compelling performances — advancing to the 2010 St. Louis final in their debut and defeating first Damien Mudge/Ben Gould and then Matt Jenson/Clive Leach to win the 2011 Briggs Cup in their most recent team appearances — that bookended semifinal advances in Greenwich and Brooklyn in the winter of 2011, a runner-up finish in St. Louis 2011 and a pair of Challenger tournament victories during the 2010-11 season in Buffalo and Philadelphia. After saving match-ball-against in the third game of their breakthrough win against Mudge/Gould (the only loss this latter pair has ever sustained) and following this signal achievement up with a convincing four-game final-round win the next night, Mathur and Badan were forced into a midseason suspension of their partnership when Badan accepted a head pro position at the Country Club Of New Canaan right around New Year's Day last winter, a move that limited his play during the calendar 2012 portion of the season. Mathur spent that enforced hiatus (which thankfully has ended, freeing Badan to rejoin the tour this autumn) teaming up with Leach, with whom he reached three finals (in Boston, Philadelphia and Brooklyn) in four attempts, the sole exception being when Badan and Jenson upended them in a North American Open semi that reversed the outcome one week earlier when the same pairings had met in the identical round at the University Club Of Boston.

Badan, the former Switzerland national junior champion, had teamed with yet another former Trinity College teammate, Jonny Smith, throughout the productive 2009-10 season that began with them coming within a simultaneous-championship-point (on which a tindefying Chris Walker forehand reverse-corner winner gave himself and Mark Chaloner the winning margin) of capturing the U. S. Pro title in Wilmington, following which the Smith/Badan duo, quarterfinalists in Greenwich and Brooklyn, highlighted their year by edging John Russell and Preston Quick, 15-13 in the fourth, to attain the semis of the Kellner Cup. Mathur, after playing a heroic role in Trinity's 5-4 2009 Potter Cup final-round win over Princeton, spent his first post-collegiate season learning his way around the tour, then had the start of his 2010-11 season briefly delayed by a serious and deep cut when his hand accidentally plunged through a pane of glass. But as soon as the wound healed, he and Badan shocked the world with their consecutive upset wins over Jenson/Leach and Paul Price/Raj Nanda in St. Louis and have never looked back.

Matt Jenson/Preston Quick: Finalists in both of their prior team forays (namely Cleveland '08, where they defeated Michael Pirnak/ Mark Chaloner and Chris Walker/Clive Leach, and the Cambridge Club Doubles in 2010, where after trailing Viktor Berg and Russell 2-0, 8-3, they eventually led 6-2 in the fifth before being overtaken), each member of this pairing is coming off a long and successful mid- to late-2000's partnership and a past series of highly productive performances at the Maryland Club. Quick, now entering his second year as Director Of Doubles for U. S. Squash, is coming off a 2011-12 season in which he became the first player in more than 35 years to win the Hardball Nationals and the U. S. National Doubles in the same season, having soloed through a highly competitive draw at the Harvard Club Of New York in mid-February before partnering Greg Park to the doubles title six weeks later in Rye. There they out-lasted Bernardo Samper and Mark Price in a five-game quarterfinal and eked out a trio of one-point games in their straight-set final with Trevor McGuinness and Whitten Morris. It was the fourth U. S. National Doubles title for Quick, the third of which came in 2007, when it was a ranking pro tour stop and he was in the first year of an outstanding five-year stint with Russell during which they reached 15 finals (including the Maryland Club Open in 2006, 2008 and 2010) and got to at least the semis in 33 of their last 38 appearances.

2012 MARYLAND CLUB OPEN TEAM PROFILES BY ROB DINERMAN

Jenson recently completed a fruitful extended partnership of his own when he and Leach amicably parted ways midway through last season, ending a three and a half year run highlighted by 10 final-round advances, including in five of the last seven events they entered in calendar 2011, namely Boston, the North American Open, the Players Championship, the Big Apple Open and the Briggs Cup, all among the most important tournaments the sport of doubles squash has to offer. In addition to those exploits with Leach (with whom he also placed second last fall in the Maryland Club's three-team round-robin invitational) and the pair of finals with Quick, Jenson was also a finalist in Cleveland 2011 with Willie Hosey and at last winter's North American Open with Yvain Badan. In one of the few Jenson/Leach vs. Russell/Quick meetings, occurring in the semis of the 2010 Maryland Club Open, Jenson hit winners on simultaneous-game-ball in each of the first two games (a three-wall that bounced erratically past Quick, then a right backhand reverse-corner) but hyper-extended his right knee late in a close third game (which his team lost 15-13), that severely limited his mobility thereafter and eventually forced him to retire early in the fifth game. Currently based in Charleston, South Carolina, where he coaches at the Kiawah Island Club as well as the Charleston Squash Club, Jenson was elected as one of the two player reps by his professional colleagues, a clear tribute to the popularity and respect that he deservedly enjoys among his peers.

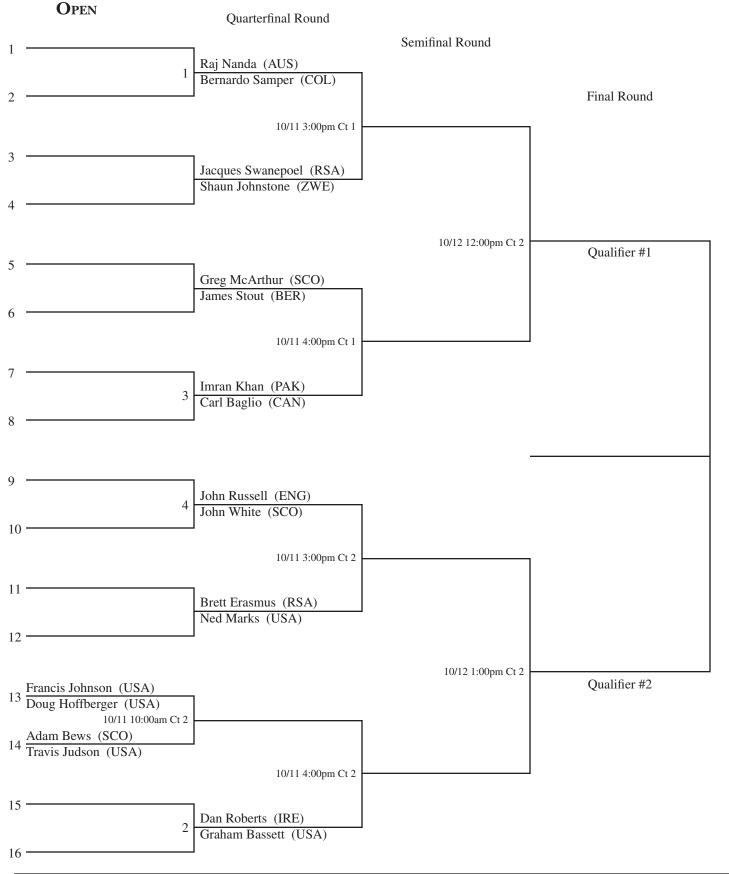

Paul Price/Clive Leach: Finalists 22 months ago in the only time prior to this weekend that they had ever teamed up (the 2010 Philadelphia Open), this pair of deadly and creative shot-makers have won well over 30 professional doubles tournaments between them during the past decade and have engaged in fierce cross-court battles against each other dozens of times throughout much of that span. Including in this latter count was the final round of the 2007 Maryland Club Open, in which defending champions and later 2009 World Doubles titlists Price and partner Ben Gould (who would also win this tourney in 2008), leading Leach and Chris Walker two games to one and well ahead in the fourth game as well, were overtaken 15-12, 15-11 by the two British stars. Though Price, a 2000 British Open finalist and noted musician (see www.paulpricemusic.com), and his Australian compatriot Gould let that match get away, they did notch 22 pro doubles titles during their four years (2006-2010) as partners, and Price has also come away with the Cambridge Club Doubles crown in 2004 and 2005 with Damien Mudge, in 2006 with Jamie Bentley and just this past autumn with Mark Chaloner, when after barely surviving a route-going Pools match against Walker and Gould, they won in surprisingly swift 15-7, 10 and 11 fashion over Mudge and Willie Hosey.

Leach, a former PSA top-30 who along with Mudge are the only players to have reached at least two ranking-tournament finals in each of the past nine years, has deservedly gained a reputation for stopping extended streaks of top-ranked opponents, part of the reason that he and Price are viewed as the loose-cannon wild-card team on this tour. Leach and Blair Horler were the duo that finally put an end to the Mudge/Gary Waite 22-month, 24-tournament, 76-match undefeated skein when they toppled the reigning champs in a 2003 Canadian Pro final that wasn't even as close as the not-close 15-7 in the fourth tally. Leach and Jenson were the only team to defeat both Mudge/Viktor Berg and Price/Gould during a 2009-10 campaign in which one or the other of those tandems won every event that entire season. And when Leach and Matt Jenson battled eventual champs Manek Mathur and Yvain Badan in the 2011 Briggs Cup final this past December, it marked the first time that neither Mudge nor Gould was on the tournament-winning team in the four-plus years and 48 sanctioned pro events since the Walker/Leach 2007 Maryland Club Open triumph.

Rob Dinerman has written the team profiles and major articles for every Maryland Club Open Program in the history of this tournament and his "History Of The U. S. National Doubles In Baltimore" was the feature article in the National Doubles Program when that event was held in Baltimore in March 2010. The winner of two pro-am events, the Mitch Jennings Cup and Tim Chilton Cup during the 2009-10 season (with Chris Walker and Ed Chilton as his respective partners), Dinerman was ranked as high as No. 10 on the WPSA pro hardball tour, winning more than 50 Open hardball tournaments and reaching the finals of the U. S. Nationals in 2004 and 2005. He is currently the editor of the Dailysquashreport.com web site and is the major writer for both the men's and women's professional doubles tours. He recently released a memoir "Chasing The Lion: An Unresolved Journey Through The Phillips Exeter Academy," excerpts from which can be found on his web site, www.robdinerman.com.

Providing thoughtful, conservative Separate Account Management programs since 1973

By prudently investing in value-oriented equities, of solidly financed companies, we seek to provide steady, consistent performance over the complete market cycle.

Our team also seeks to identify fixed income securities that are capable of producing "equity-like returns" without the volatility of the stock market.

Success requires vision, planning, and dedication.

At Stifel Nicolaus, we succeed in helping our clients pursue their financial goals in much the same way – with foresight, planning, teamwork, and determination.

To meet individual needs, we assist clients in planning for a secure retirement, providing a college education for their children, or fulfilling their own personal goals.

To help businesses succeed and grow, we meet the complex needs of corporate executives, develop customized company-sponsored retirement plans, provide unique investment banking services, and create innovative financing.

Congratulations to our Equity Research Group for ranking third in the 2012 FT/StarMine World's Top Analysts Survey. Among a field of approximately 4,000 analysts, Stifel captured three of the top ten overall spots in the earnings estimate accuracy category, giving it more top ten rankings than any other firm. The FT/StarMine World's Top Analysts Survey recognizes analysts who have turned in exemplary performances either as earnings estimators or stock pickers during calendar year 2011. Stifel Nicolaus has now ranked in the survey's top five for the last seven years.
