Dear Sponsors, Patrons, Professionals and Guests:

The 2013 Maryland Club Open Tournament Committee is pleased to welcome all the Sponsors, Patrons, SDA professionals, Members and Guests to the 10th annual Maryland Club Open. The Club's members have undertaken ALL aspects of hosting such a high level tournament – including fundraising, scheduling, social events and marketing. This year's tournament includes a professional doubles event, now under the new SDA (Squash Doubles Association) banner, a 24 team doubles Pro-Am and a singles exhibition with former top tier talent.

Obviously, a tournament of this magnitude could not have been possible without the involvement and financial support of the Maryland Club's members. Specifically, we offer our sincere thanks to Brown Advisory, Maryland Club, Platt Development Group, Stifel, T. Rowe Price and U.S. Trust, the Tournament's Gold sponsors. Additionally, there are several other individuals and businesses linked to our membership that have been financially supportive and are listed in the Tournament program. Close to $1 million has been raised by this event over the last 10 years.

We would not have considered hosting this tournament again if the Squash Committee, Board of Governors and Club Management did not believe the Maryland Club had the facilities and extraordinary staff necessary to flawlessly run such an event. This weekend, we are certain that you will experience the dedication of all of the Maryland Club staff as no details will be overlooked. We would like to thank Katherine Mandaro, the Club's General Manager, for her support of the squash program, as well as the Club's President, Jim Smith and the Board of Governors for their efforts in ensuring that the Maryland Club's services and facilities are always exceptional.

Lastly, the Committee would like to thank Andrew Cordova, Stewart Shettle, and the Maryland Club Squash Committee for their attention to detail in preparing for this year's Tournament and for always being wonderful ambassadors for Maryland Club squash.

Welcome to the 2013 Maryland Club Open!

Sincerely,

Douglas M. Hoffberger, Tournament Chairman

Dear Sponsors, Patrons, Professionals, and Guests:

We are proud to be a Gold Sponsor of the 2013 Maryland Club Open. With the SDA Pro Tour now well-established as it enters its second year, this year's tournament promises an exciting and entertaining competition.

Congratulations and thank you to our squash pro, the irrepressible Andrew Cordova, the squash committee, and the professional staff who have dedicated so much time to make this year's tournament a rousing success.

We remember well our friend and colleague Jack Laporte, who left us all too suddenly this past summer after a brief illness. Jack was a member of the Board of Governors of the Maryland Club, a long-time patron and supporter of the Maryland Club Open and the Maryland Club Squash program, and an avid squash player. We miss Jack sorely. Please see our tribute to him in this program.

Best regards.

Best regards,

Jack Laporte

Distinguished Investor, Inspiring Mentor, and Outstanding Individual

Jack Laporte, who retired at the end of last year after a 36-year career with T. Rowe Price, passed away on August 12 at the age of 68 after a brief bout with cancer.

Jack was well known to all of us at the Maryland Club. He was a member of the Board of Governors, a long-time patron of the Maryland Club Open, and an active member of the Maryland Club Squash program. Jack has many Maryland Club trophies to his credit, both singles and doubles. He was a finalist in the past three years in the over 60 singles and won, along with Charlie Fenwick, the over 60 doubles in 2012.

He also supported, both financially and actively, various cultural and educational organizations in the community. In particular, Jack's support was instrumental in the construction of new squash facilities at Princeton and locally at St. Paul's. He was also one of the founding board members of Baltimore SquashWise, a program that promotes education through squash at Baltimore City schools.

Professionally, Jack joined T. Rowe Price in 1976 as a research analyst. His leadership ability and mentoring skills enabled him to add significant value to the firm in various roles. But his real calling was investing and in 1987 he took over management of the venerable New Horizons Fund, which Thomas Rowe Price Jr. founded in 1960 and had become one of the most prominent funds investing in small, growth companies. He would become the longest-tenured manager in the fund's history, spanning more than 22 years until March, 2010. He was Morningstar's equity manager of the year in 1995.

Renowned as one of the industry's leading small-cap stock investors, Jack is also remembered by colleagues for his leadership, his outstanding qualities as a person, and his investing acumen and insights that he generously shared in mentoring so many of the firm's equity research analysts and other portfolio managers over the years. He will perhaps be best remembered for his character and the kind of person he was. He set an example as an individual for his high ethics and standards, humility, patience, curiosity, generosity, cooperation, encouragement and, as one of his colleagues said, "his tremendous desire to look for the good in people."

Jack will be sorely missed by all of those who were fortunate enough to know and work with him.

1928 to infinity...

Squash racquets came to the States from England in 1882 and was first played at St. Paul's School in Concord, NH. The game arrived at the Maryland Club in 1928, seventy years after the founding of the Club and at a point midway between the two world wars.

One must realize that in 1858 when the Club was first organized it was a meeting place for gentlemen, and I do mean "gentlemen" in every sense of the word. Those old fellows literally basked in an ambiance of beautiful oriental rugs, dark paneling, the finest food in Baltimore, perhaps the best supply of oysters and terrapin in the whole area, generous drinks, pure white Irish linen, sparkling crystal, sterling silver, (even some gold place settings), priceless historical and sporting prints and paintings, Havana cigars, and a privacy that was almost sacred. The idea of ladies on the premises was not even a dream. As a matter of fact, when I first joined the Club I can remember an old friend telling me that the day he was elected a member his father resigned. Way back then some fathers felt that having a son in one's club was a definite invasion of that very special privacy! So you can well imagine that the idea of having young squash players actually as members of the Club did not come easily.

The four wooden singles courts that were built in 1928 are still very much in use today. The courts, the galleries, the luncheon lounge (with the many championship boards listing the winners of the Club, State and National tournaments), the locker rooms, the shower facilities, and a small weight and workout area, all of this was built for a total cost of $75,000.00, and they got a $48,000.00 mortgage from the bank at 4½ percent!

Writing at the time, Carroll Dulaney noted humorously in his News Post column: "Time was when a gentlemen who measured less than 50 inches around the equator had some difficulty in joining the Maryland Club. It was not impossible, of course, but it devolved upon him to show that his leanness was hereditary, that his father and his grandfather before him had been cast in the same sylph-like mold. But we are living in a new and different age. Today the Club places marked emphasis upon its squash courts to keep you fit and your weight down. As a plain Baltimorean with an eye for beauty, I welcome the change. Soon the new Maryland Clubber will be as different from the old model-T as the dainty chorus girl of today differs from her grandmother of Billy Watson's Beef Trust."

Between 1921 and 1927 Lawrence Bailliere pretty much dominated the State singles championships and the next year when things got going at the Maryland Club he was still very much in evidence. Other names of that era were Frank Symington, Bill Cooney, Vernon Cook and John Bibby. Bill Lamblé did not join the Club until fairly late in his illustrious career, but his many State and Club Championships in both singles and doubles certainly merit calling those the Lamblé years. Prominent Club players of that time were Frank Gould, Alexander Harvey, and I even won a few myself. Next came the Lacy years with Jim Lacy gaining many singles titles in all sorts of tournaments and with his brother Joe (they were both left-handers) made up the top team in the Baltimore area for a long time. The only other "years" accolade goes to Sandy Martin who is perhaps the best doubles player the Club has ever produced. Sandy compiled an excellent doubles record at the National level and also has a long string of State and Club singles and doubles wins to his credit. A.C. Hubbard and Jervis Finney are two other elder players who have piled up a lot of wins. This article is supposed to be historic in content and so I do sincerely apologize to the many, many fine, tough, young players who dominate the game today and who still keep the Maryland Club on top of the local squash scene.

In the old days we used to play the Naval Academy on a fairly regular basis, and, believe it or not, we usually won most of our team matches, but those guys stayed at the same age year after year and somehow or other we always seemed to be a year older! That competition has not been too active of late, but I feel strongly that our current young troops could easily start us off on another winning streak.

In 1969 Eddie Sheaffer was our first full-time professional and was a constant source of improvement to our games.

In 1965, thanks to the efforts of Rufus Williams, we got a really great doubles court and right now today we are starting work on two more singles courts (one with a glass back wall) and a second doubles court. In the beginning, the squash program worked its way up to approximately 50 season ticket holders. Today we have over 265. By the end of 1987 we will have 6 singles and 2 doubles courts, a whole bunch of older players, a lot in between, and most of all a real crowd of young, tough ones who will carry Maryland Club squash well into the 21st Century.

The Club can take great pride in its illustrious past, the retention of its fine old traditions and its firm adaptability to current times. The ladies now grace our Club with charm and respect and surely make it a finer place. The old gentlemen still play cards on their book-lined library room and the members' bar remains a most exclusive sanctuary. At the same time, on our extremely active squash courts, a new breed of nautilus-minded gentlemen athletes guarantee the future of our Club for many generations to come.

Tommy Schweizer, 1988

This remembrance was written seven years prior to the fire of 1995 which destroyed the four original hardball singles courts.

THE MARYLAND CLUB OPEN TENTH ANNIVERSARY: BY ROB DINERMAN

The Maryland Club Open, which marks its tenth anniversary this weekend (there was a one-year hiatus in 2009 with Baltimore hosting the U. S. National Doubles the following spring), is already the sixth longest-tenured event on the North American pro doubles tour, trailing only the David Johnson Memorial event in Brooklyn, the North American Open, Boston, Wilmington and the Jim Bentley Cup in Toronto, all of whom have been stand-bys on the schedule for more than two decades. The Maryland Club courts have borne witness to some extraordinary results since its dramatic debut on Halloween night in 2003, by the end of which two of the top four seeds were sent packing and a third barely survived. Enough landscape-transforming trends were either stopped, marked or jump-started on Eager Street to have given the tournament a character and dynamic all its own, and on this landmark occasion it seems fitting to list them and elaborate on their impact on all that followed.

As noted, the very first main-draw match of the inaugural edition saw third seeds Blair Horler and Clive Leach, who had pounded and sharp-shot their way to the Kellner Cup title the previous spring, roaring back from a two-love deficit against long-time No. 1's Damien Mudge and Gary Waite, promptly eliminated, in straight sets no less, by qualifiers Alex Pavulans and Chris Deratnay, following which almost immediately thereafter fourth seeds Josh McDonald and Viktor Berg were routed in their fifth game against Jamie Bentley and Preston Quick. Second seeds Willie Hosey and Michael Pirnak barely escaped a similar fate in their match with qualifiers David Kay and Chris Walker, who pushed the issue to 13-14 in the fifth before Kay rifled a forehand rail that rang loudly off the tin. Reprieved in this fashion, Hosey and Pirnak then beat Quick/Bentley in the semis before being over-run by Waite and Mudge in the final.

The latter tandem would repeat as champions both in 2004 (en route to going undefeated for that entire 2004-05 campaign) and 2005, when they would extend their string of consecutive-tournaments-won to 19 respectively (dating back to a January 2004 final-round loss in Boston to 2004 Maryland Club Open finalists McDonald/Berg), a skein that would end right here in Baltimore, as Quick and his new partner Ben Gould, who lost the 2005 final to Waite/Mudge, would reverse that outcome when the same two teams met just a few weeks later in the Big Apple Open final, where Gould and Quick would prevail, 15-14 in the fourth.

The next several versions of the Maryland Club Open saw results that would augur transforming changes in professional men's doubles squash on this continent. In 2006 Waite and Mudge, who had enjoyed yet another dominant 2005-06 season, their seventh straight, won the first game of their semifinal match against new partners Gould and Price and stood at game-ball to go up two-love in the second, when Price delivered an untouchable inside-out forehand roll-corner that completely fooled Waite, after which Price/Gould romped through the remaining two games and rose superior to another new partnership, namely Quick and John Russell, in the final. Price and Gould would go on to a sensational 2006-07 season, winning a tour-leading five tournaments, including the Briggs Cup and North American Open, and displacing Mudge and Gould as the No. 1 team.

A DECADE OF TWISTS AND TURNS

BY ROB DINERMAN

They therefore entered the 2007 Maryland Club Open, the second stop on the pro-doubles schedule that year, as imposing favorites, and their semifinal loss a few weeks earlier in St. Louis, when they had let a 2-1, 14-9 lead slip away in an eventual five-game loss to Leach and Chris Walker, was regarded as something of a fluke. They would get their chance at revenge when the two teams met Sunday afternoon in the final, in which Price and Gould earned a two games to one advantage and took a small lead in the fourth game as well. But Leach and Walker, semifinal winners a day earlier against debuting partners Mudge and Berg, came up with some compelling squash in the closing 15-12, 15-11 laps to capture their second consecutive ISDA title and briefly advance to the top spot in the rankings.

Remarkably, the two teams that Walker/Leach sequentially defeated that weekend in Charm City, namely Mudge/Berg and Price/Gould, would subsequently embark upon a run lasting all the way through the 2009-10 season, in which one or the other would win all 34 sanctioned ranking tournaments on the ISDA schedule during those nearly three years, with each winning 17 events. The two teams met in 17 of those 34 finals, with Price and Gould (who notched the 2008 Maryland Club Open with a final-round win over a Russell/Quick duo that had ousted Mudge and Berg in the semis) holding the slimmest possible 9-8 edge in what became the most enduring, intriguing and evenly matched rivalry in the history of the ISDA.

This two-team aristocracy might well have extended even longer were it not for the decision that Mudge and Gould reached during the summer of 2010 to join forces rather than continue their many years of beating each other's brains out. An undefeated (12 for 12 tournaments, won-lost record of 38-0) 2010-11 season followed, though in their first-ever match of their partnership, a Maryland Club Open quarterfinal, Walker and Mark Chaloner took a 1-0, 7-4 lead. But Mudge and Gould would then blast their way through that game and the eight that followed (the last three coming in their final with Quick and Russell) and never looked back, culminating that season by winning the World Doubles in Toronto by surmounting one of their few late-match deficits in their final with Russell and Leach, who led two-one before being overtaken in the last two games.

Mudge and Gould would successfully defend the Maryland Club Open crown in 2011, which was played as a three-team round-robin, and 2012 (the debut event for the newly formed Squash Doubles Association, on which longtime Maryland Club head pro Andrew Cordova serves as Director Of Development), which for sheer depth of the competition at all levels of the draw may have been the most memorable holding of this tournament in its history. All but one of the seven main-draw matches either went to at least a fourth game or had one or more 15-14 tallies, as was also the case in five of the seven matches contested in the qualifying flights. Russell and former PSA No. 1 John White saved a third-game triple-match-point against them and wound up pushing Quick and his new partner Matt Jenson to 13-all in the fifth, at which juncture White unaccountably slipped to the floor in the middle of the ensuing exchange, costing his team that point and giving his opponents the momentum and another match-ball, which they promptly converted. Quick and Jenson then played Mudge and Gould (first-round 3-0 winners over Walker/Chaloner) much closer in the semis than the 15-9, 12 and 11 score implies, staying even through the first half of each game before the eventual champions made swift three- and four-point runs and closed each game from there.

The bottom half also had a 15-13 fifth-game denouement, this one involving a match-up between debuting teams; Greg Park and Jonny Smith won a 15-14 third game to go up 2-1 against Price and Leach, who, however, survived due to a winner off Price's racquet at 14-13 in the fifth game. They then lost in four to Manek Mathur and Yvain Badan, whose first four evenly-divided games vs. Mudge and Gould were all decided by three points or less, but the latter pairing then raced out to a 7-1 lead in the fifth, sealing the 15-7 outcome.

Mudge has therefore won this tournament a record six times, its first three holdings with Waite and its last three with (now five-time champ) Gould sandwiching, however, three straight losses in the middle years in the semis, making the Maryland Club Open the only stop on the schedule in which Mudge has been stopped that many consecutive times short of the final. Gould has reached the last seven Maryland Club Open finals, with three different partners, namely Quick (a four-time finalist, including with Russell in 2006, 2008 and 2010) in 2005, Price for three-straight years from 2006-08 and Mudge the last three years. The Maryland Club Open has become a one of those stops that SDA players circle on the calendar, and a pivot point for the event-filled schedule that follows, and, if history is any guide, the 2013 edition will enhance the substantial tradition that the tournament has already firmly established.

Rob Dinerman has written the team profiles and major articles for every Maryland Club Open in the history of this tournament and his "History Of The U. S. National Doubles In Baltimore" was the feature article in the National Doubles Program when that event was held in Baltimore in March 2010. The winner of the Mitch Jennings Cup and the Tim Chilton Cup during the 2009-10 season (with Chris Walker and Ed Chilton as his respective partners), Dinerman was ranked as high as No. 10 on the WPSA pro hardball tour, winning more than 50 Open hardball tournaments and reaching the finals of the U. S. Nationals in 2004 and 2005. SUCCESS REQUIRES VISION, PLANNING, AND DEDICATION.

At Stifel, we succeed in helping our clients pursue their financial goals in much the same way – with foresight, planning, teamwork, and determination.

To meet individual needs, we assist clients in planning for a secure retirement, providing a college education for their children, or fulfilling their own personal goals.

To help businesses succeed and grow, we meet the complex needs of corporate executives, develop customized company-sponsored retirement plans, provide unique investment banking services, and create innovative financing.

Congratulations to our Equity Research Group for ranking second in the 12th annual FT/StarMine World's Top Analysts Survey. Among a field of approximately 4,000 analysts, Stifel captured the top two overall spots in the earnings estimate accuracy category.

The FT/StarMine World's Top Analysts Survey recognizes analysts who have turned in exemplary performances either as earnings estimators or stock pickers during calendar year 2012. Stifel has now ranked in the survey's top five for the last eight years.
